

Intimate Partner Violence Homicides in Nevada 2017

November 2018
Nevada Coalition to End Domestic and Sexual Violence

DEDICATION

The Nevada Coalition to End Domestic and Sexual Violence (NCEDSV) dedicates this report to the women, children, and men in Nevada who lost their lives due to intimate partner violence.

INTRODUCTION

In 2017, NCEDSV identified 19 domestic violence incidences that resulted in 28 deaths. These incidences were documented in published news accounts and through publicly available police reports.

National Snapshot & History

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), the National Intimate Partner and Sexual Violence Survey (NISVS) indicates that almost half of the women (48.1%) and almost one-third of men (30.9%) living in Nevada have experienced rape, physical violence, and/or stalking by an intimate partner.¹ As this report highlights, domestic violence homicide can be the tragic outcome of a violent relationship.

Additionally, the Bureau of Justice Statistics states that the reporting rate to police for intimate partner violence incidences is approximately 46.9%.² For incidences classified as serious intimate partner violence that includes rape, sexual assault, robbery, and aggravated assault, the reporting rate is slightly higher at 51.9%.³

For 22 years, NCEDSV has documented the number of fatal incidences by reviewing news reports and publically available police homicide reports. Each incident received a varying degree of attention from reporters, ranging from multi-story investigative reporting to simple one-paragraph crime reports. As such, the descriptions in the report are not an attempt to capture the full complexity of these events.

Definitions

Nevada has a very broad definition regarding who can be a victim of domestic violence. Nevada Revised Statutes defines domestic violence to include spouses, former spouses, family members, persons who have or had a dating relationship, persons with a child or children in common, the children of two persons, and persons cohabitating together.⁴ To be included in this report, NCEDSV identified each homicide as an intimate partner violence-related incident; the deaths resulted from violence between adults who were either current or past intimate partners.

³ Ibid.

⁴ Nev. Rev. Stat. § 33.018 (This statute was revised in 2017 to remove persons cohabitating together which became effective Jan. 1, 2018.)

This report also measures the number of perpetrator deaths, children, family members, current partners, and law enforcement killed.

NCEDSV limits the definition of domestic violence to focus on our partner agencies' work to ending both intimate partner and sexual violence.

Document Limitations

NCEDSV relies solely on publicly accessible information to create this report. NCEDSV reviews media clippings and the homicide reports of law enforcement agencies that provide information to the public. If the media does not report the killing as an intimate partner homicide or as a murder-suicide, NCEDSV does not include it in this report. As such, NCEDSV does not state this is the definitive number of domestic violence homicides, but it is the number identified through the sources described.

Additionally, the events listed have not been proven in court and as such the guilt or innocence of anyone listed as a perpetrator is considered alleged.

HOMICIDE INCIDENTS OVERVIEW

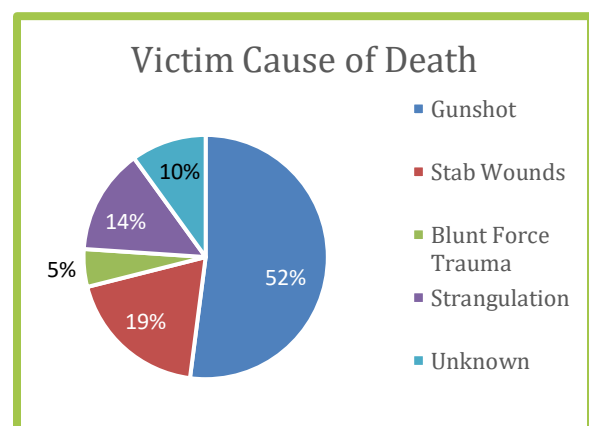

In 2017, NCEDSV identified 18 incidents in which someone lost his/her/their lives due to domestic violence⁵. In these incidents:

- Fifteen women and two men were killed due to intimate partner violence.
- Two children were killed during an intimate partner violence incident.
- The parents of a victim were killed in connection with an intimate partner violence homicide.
- Six alleged male perpetrators' suicide deaths followed domestic violence homicide or attempted homicide.

Cause of Death

National studies show that when there is a handgun present in a household where domestic violence is occurring, the chances of someone being killed increases 500 percent.⁶ These statistics continue to bear true in Nevada.

In 2017, 11 of the 21 victim, child, and bystander deaths (52.38 percent) were due to gunshot wounds; 4 or 19.05 percent were due to stab wounds; 3 or 14.29 percent were to

⁵ There were two cases of self-defense identified. However, due to the fact the individuals who were killed were perpetrators of intimate partner violence, their cases are not included in this report.

strangulation, 2 or 9.52 percent were due to unknown circumstances, and 1 or 4.76 percent was due to blunt force trauma.

Additionally, 66.67 percent of the alleged perpetrators who killed themselves, used firearms.

Average Age

The average age of persons who died was 27.

Victim/Perpetrator Relationship

The majority of fatal incidences that occurred were between dating (23.81 percent) or formerly dating (23.81 percent) individuals.

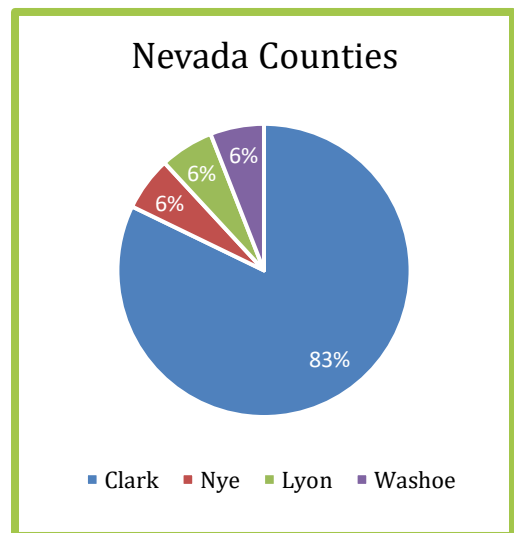

This year, two children were killed in intimate partner violence situations. Additionally, two parents of a victim were murdered in a secondary location.

Counties Where Incidences Occurred

Due to Nevada’s population disbursement, it is not surprising that the majority of intimate partner homicides occurred in the primary urban area of Clark County.

In total, NCEDSV identified 18 intimate partner homicide incidents:

- Clark County had 15 intimate partner homicides or 83 percent;
- Lyon County had one domestic violence homicide incident where three people were murdered;
- Nye County had a murder-suicide; and
- Washoe County had one intimate partner homicide.
