Theory of Change Narrative

Our coalition is working towards a Nevada in which domestic and sexual violence are eradicated and healthy relationships thrive. It's a big vision. We can make progress together by advocating for change, educating our communities, and supporting the front-line organizations that help those impacted by domestic and sexual violence.

We have two goals that drive our work. One is to help Nevada's domestic and sexual violence victim service providers deliver robust and inclusive prevention, intervention, and survivor services. We know we are making progress when:

- Victim service providers maintain consistency with best practice standards.
- Community service providers collaborate to meet community domestic and sexual violence needs.
- Community-based victim service providers and coalitions receive robust funding.
- Victim service providers offer comprehensive culturally-responsive services.
- Community-based victim service providers plan for sustainability.

Our other goal is to help Nevada's state systems and policies be victim-centered, trauma informed, and prevention oriented. We know we are making progress when:

- Leaders in our state systems understand the complexity and intersectionality of domestic and sexual violence.
- Our state systems and policies support and provide best practice prevention education.
- Our state systems and policies support community-based victim service providers and coalitions.

By working on these goals, we are promoting community understanding of healthy relationships and domestic and sexual violence. And, when domestic or sexual violence does occur, ensuring that survivors throughout Nevada have easy access to essential services for themselves and their children.
